

Plumbing industry celebrates global achievements

Plumbers around the world had reason to celebrate on Friday (11th March), as they marked the annual World Plumbing Day.

The Water Corporation and MPGA jointly launched the Waterwise Plumber Program more than 10 years ago, an initiative which has seen a big increase in the use of water-efficient products by plumbers in WA.

In addition, Mr Thomas says plumbing has been responsible for the eradication and control of life-threatening diseases such as cholera and dysentery in Australia thanks to world-class training and regulation in the industry.
