BUILDING A MODERN TRADE BUSINESS

Techworks Plumbing is the kind of business The Master Plumbers and Gasfitters Association of WA is proud to have as a member:

- 1 Progressive
- 2 Professional
- 3 Committed to raising standards within the industry

Matt Goundrey created Techworks Plumbing in 2017 after identifying the need for integrated plumbing and hydraulic services in government contracts.

Since then, Techworks Plumbing has grown steadily within the government, education and commercial maintenance sectors throughout Perth.

Operating under the Techworks Group banner, Techworks Plumbing delivers plumbing and maintenance services across schools, bus depots, Curtin University, student accommodation and local government facilities, with a strong focus on long-term service relationships and consistent delivery.

The General Manager of Techworks Plumbing is Thomas Atkinson, whose background spans civil, commercial and estimating environments. His practical industry experience and operational leadership have shaped the structured, systems-driven approach the business is known for today.

A major point of difference for the business is its investment in people and workplace culture. Techworks Plumbing has introduced company-funded paid parental leave, demonstrating a progressive approach to staff wellbeing, retention and long-term team development – something still relatively uncommon within the trade sector.

This commitment to people and standards has also been formally recognised, with Techworks Plumbing receiving awards for Excellence in Mental Health & Wellbeing, Workplace Health & Safety, and Employer of Choice in recent years.

As The Master Plumbers and Gasfitters Association of WA prepares for the launch of our new Find a Master Plumber platform, businesses like Techworks Plumbing highlight the strength of our membership base – businesses focused not only on technical capability, but also on building sustainable workplaces and delivering better outcomes for clients and staff alike.
